

Form of Godliness among us, of restoring Christian Virtue in a profane and almost barbarous Nation. And if any wish him for any distant Ends; if any desire his Shadow as a Shelter for their Riots and Licentiousness, O let him come a great, but happy Defeat to all such, not bring Fuel, but Cure to their inordinate Appetites; and by his Example as a Christian, and his Authority, as a King, so invite to Good, and restrain from Evil, that he may not only release us from temporal but our spiritual Bondage, suppress those foul and scandalous Vices which have so long captivated us, and by securing our forward, provide for the perpetuating our outward Peace. Lord establish thou his Throne in Righteousness; make him a signal Instrument of thy Glory and our Happiness, and let him reap the Fruits of it in Comfort
